HONORARY DEGREE

Carolyn Grubbs Williams

Dr. Carolyn Grubbs Williams has been an outstanding advocate and leader in higher education for more than a decade. She was named the fourth president of Bronx Community College of the City University of New York in 1996 and is the first woman to serve in that position.

Dr. Williams came to this post after serving as president of Los Angeles Southwest College from 1991–96. Before that, she was dean of student affairs at Highland Park Community College, and vice provost and acting vice president for academic affairs at Wayne County Community College, both in Detroit.

Her expertise has been recognized at the highest level of government. In 1999, she participated in the national summit on 21st Century Skills for 21st Century Jobs. She serves on a number of national boards including the American Council on Education, the Association of American Colleges & Universities, the National Council on Black American Affairs and is past chair of both the Council for Adult and Experiential Learning and the American Association of Community Colleges.

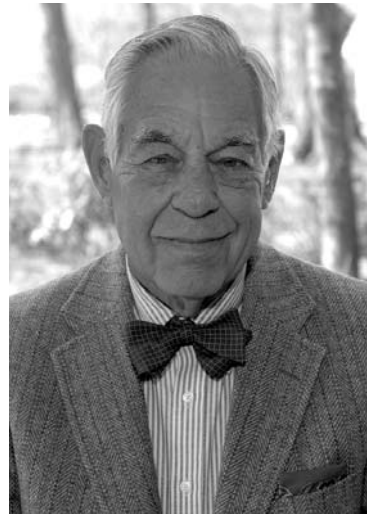

Through the National Center for Educational Alliances, she has been instrumental in a program to improve cooperation among the Further Education and Training Institutes, technical institutes and higher educational institutions. Bronx Community College was awarded a $350,000 grant to expand a program that links FET institutes and universities.

Dr. Williams also gives generously of her time to improve the quality of life in her community, serving on the boards of directors of the Boy Scouts of America and Bronx Council for Economic Development, among others.

She earned a bachelor's in sociology, master's in urban planning and doctorate in higher education from Wayne State University, Detroit. She is married to Houston Williams, a doctor of dental medicine. They have one daughter, Stacy, also a dentist.

HONORARY DEGREE

Henry E. & Nancy Horton Bartels

Quiet generosity best describes Henry E. and Nancy Horton Bartels, residents of neighboring North Haven and philanthropists extraordinaire. Their philanthropy is principally for education, ranging from support of programs for young children in the city of New Haven to private universities. They are most proud of their support of educational programs for underprivileged young children living in the inner city.

The Bartels' success was hard earned. Mr. Bartels, who lost his father at age 13, was the first in his family to go to college. He graduated from public high school in Cranford, N.J., in 1940, at the end of the Great Depression. He went to work in a factory for a year to earn money for college. Thanks to his own hard work and a New Jersey state scholarship, Mr. Bartels then attended Rutgers University for two years before World War II exploded and he joined the U.S. Navy. A three-year stint as a naval aviator flying carrier-based dive bombers was followed by a return to college, this time at Cornell University under the GI Bill.

It was at Cornell where the couple's lives converged, in a music appreciation class—the one class he was allowed to take outside his industrial engineering major. Mrs. Bartels, a zoology major, always had a deep appreciation for the arts, which were emphasized in her home in Greenwich Village as a child.

Both graduated from Cornell in 1948, and they were married shortly thereafter before moving to Cleveland, where Mr. Bartels joined the Lincoln Electric Company, the first of several positions he would hold in factory settings. “I’m a factory worker and proud to be one. Factory workers create value by turning out products people can use,” he says. For the last 18 years of Mr. Bartels’ 37-year career in metalworking, he was a vice president of Insilco Corporation in Meriden and president of an Insilco subsidiary. Mrs. Bartels, in addition to raising their family, founded a tour company that took groups to England to visit country houses and gardens.

Their love of music has stood them well for 57 years of marriage. This partnership between two Cornellians has flourished and in recent years, benefited thousands of people through their charitable contributions.

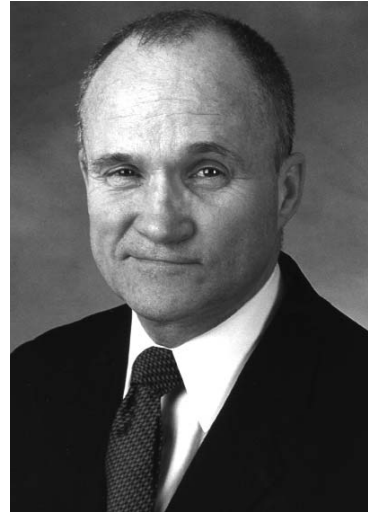

“Ninety-five percent of our giving has been to education,” says Mr. Bartels. In addition to Quinnipiac, Cornell, Rutgers, University of New Haven, Yale and Wellesley have been recipients of the Bartels’ largesse. They have befriended Quinnipiac University in myriad ways. From sponsorship of orchestral music concerts on the University Quadrangle to the establishment of the Presidential Public Service Fellowships, the Bartels constantly examine ways to benefit both the university and the community. The Marcus and Marguerite McCraven Scholarships, which enable students of color to benefit from a Quinnipiac education, and a provost’s discretionary fund were both ideas generated by the Bartels and implemented, thanks to their generosity.

Some of the other recipients of their philanthropy are Amistad Academy and several other charter schools educating young children of color, the New Haven Public Education Fund, the annual children’s concerts of the New Haven Symphony Orchestra, Boy Scouts, Historic Deerfield (a colonial museum in Massachusetts), the New Haven Festival of Arts and Ideas, Planned Parenthood and many other educational and arts organizations.

The Bartels have two children, Philip and Kenneth, and four grandchildren, Todd, Mac, Katie and Christopher.

COMMENCEMENT

Raymond W. Kelly

New York City Police Commissioner Raymond W. Kelly is responsible for providing safety and security for the 8.1 million people who call New York City home. Thanks to his leadership, the FBI has rated New York as the safest large city in the United States.

Commissioner Kelly has been New York’s “top cop” twice, the first time from 1992–94, and has served a total of 31 years in the NYPD. From October 1994 to March 1995, he directed the International Police Monitors in Haiti, then moved on to the U.S. Department of the Treasury from 1996–98, serving as undersecretary for enforcement. In addition, he served on the executive committee and was elected vice president for the Americas of Interpol, the international police organization.

His distinguished career continued when he was chosen to head the U.S. Customs Service from 1998–2001, managing the agency’s 20,000 employees. He went on to become senior managing director of global corporate security at Bear, Stearns & Co. before New York Mayor Michael Bloomberg asked him to take the helm of the NYPD once again, swearing him in as commissioner on Jan. 1, 2002. Since then, Commissioner Kelly has added 1,000 new officers to the force and is acknowledged throughout the world as a leader in the fight against terrorism.

President Clinton awarded Commissioner Kelly a commendation for “exceptionally meritorious service” in Haiti. For his accomplishments and proud heritage, Irish America Magazine this year named him “Irish American of the Year.”

Commissioner Kelly is a veteran of the Vietnam War and retired as a colonel from the Marine Corps Reserves after 30 years of service. He holds a BBA from Manhattan College, a JD from St. John’s University School of Law, an LLM from New York University School of Law and an MPA from the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University. He and his wife, Veronica, have two adult sons.

QUINNIPIAC UNIVERSITY

Since its founding in 1929, Quinnipiac University has emerged as a national leader in higher education. Its growth is based on three unchanging principles, articulated by John L. Lahey, eighth president of the university: quality academic programs, a student-oriented environment and a sense of community.

Quinnipiac offers more than 67 programs at the undergraduate and graduate levels through its School of Business, School of Communications, School of Health Sciences, School of Law, College of Liberal Arts, College of Professional Studies and Division of Education. Quinnipiac enrolls 5,200 full-time undergraduate and 2,000 graduate and law students. Its School of Law is fully accredited by the American Bar Association. Further, its School of Business is fully accredited by AACSB—The Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business. This diversity of academic programs makes Quinnipiac one of a select group of institutions providing professional education in health, business, education, communications and law.

Quinnipiac has experienced tremendous growth in the past decade. Among the 44 campus buildings are 23 residence halls and 12 academic buildings including the technologically advanced Arnold Bernhard Library, the Dean Robert W. Evans College of Liberal Arts Center and the 125,000-square-foot School of Law Center. The Quinnipiac University community looks forward to the January 2007 opening of the TD Banknorth Sports Center now under construction. The 157,000-square-foot facility will be the home for the university's Division I men's and women's ice hockey and basketball teams.

The 7,200 students attending Quinnipiac come from all parts of the United States and many foreign countries. More than 75 percent of the full-time undergraduates live on campus, and the number of alumni has grown to more than 25,000 undergraduate and 4,700 School of Law alumni who live and work throughout the world.

Quinnipiac is nationally known as one of the outstanding success stories in higher education. Even more important, Quinnipiac graduates—including those whom we honor today—are welcome additions to the professional and business communities and are helping to shape our society for the next century.

ACADEMIC REGALIA

The pageantry and dress of the academic procession have been inherited from the medieval universities of the 11th and 12th centuries.

Academic life as we know it today began in the Middle Ages, first in the Church, then in the guilds. The teaching guild was the guild of the Master of Arts, where Bachelor was the apprentice of the Master, and the dress was the outward sign of privilege and responsibility. Principal features of the academic dress are the gown, cap and hood. Both Oxford and Cambridge universities, since the 15th century, have made academic dress a matter of university control, even to its minor details, and have repeatedly revised regulations. American universities agreed on a definite system in 1895. In 1932, the American Council on Education presented a revised code, which for the most part, governs the style of academic dress today.

The Gown: The flowing gown comes from the 12th century. While it originally may have been worn as protection against the cold of unheated buildings, today it has become symbolic of the democracy of scholarship, for it covers any dress of rank or social standing. It is black for all degrees, with pointed sleeves for the bachelor's degree, long closed sleeves with a slit at the arm or wrist for the master's degree, and full bell sleeves for the doctoral degree. Bachelor's and master's degree gowns have no trimming. For the doctor's degree the gown is faced down the front with velvet and has three bars of velvet across the sleeves in the color distinctive of the faculty or discipline to which the degree pertains.

The Cap: When Rome freed the slaves, they won the privilege of wearing caps. The academic cap is a sign of freedom of scholarship and the responsibility and dignity with which scholarship endows the wearer. Old poetry records the cap of scholarship as square to symbolize the book. The color of the tassel denotes the discipline.

The Hood: The hood is trimmed with one or more chevrons of a secondary color on the ground of the primary color of the college. The color facing the hood denotes the discipline represented by the degree. The color of the lining designates the college or university from which the degree was granted.

The colors associated with the different disciplines are:

Agriculture Maize	Education Light Blue	Law Purple	Oratory Silver Gray	Public Health Salmon Pink
Arts, Letters, Humanities White	Engineering Orange	Library Science Lemon Yellow	Pharmacy Olive Green	Science Golden Yellow

MACE & MEDALLION

The mace—a symbol of authority—has antecedents in both Roman and Medieval history. The Roman mace (fascēs) was carried by a lictor before the chief magistrate of the city, as well as before the legions. During the Middle Ages, the mace (mateola), a weapon of war, became first a symbol of victory and then a symbol of authority. The mace emblazoned with the Great Seal of England became a symbol of authority in Parliament by the end of the 13th century. It is this form of the mace that was the prototype of those symbols of authority, not only of legislative bodies, but also of cities and universities. In 1246, following some 20 years of strife, the University of Paris was finally conceded the right to its own common seal. Since then, the use of the seal engraved on the mace has come to symbolize the authority of the academic community. In July 2000, Quinnipiac commissioned the noted sculptor Robert Meyer of Westport, Conn., to design and execute a new mace that reflects our name change to Quinnipiac University. Cast in bronze, the mace incorporates elements of the university seal.

The medallion (medal of office), like the mace and the seal, is also a symbol of authority. It is possible that its roots may be traced back to the Roman “bulla” (a gold amulet of honor). The obverse of the medallion shows the seal of the office the wearer holds—in our case, the seal of the university. Not infrequently, the reverse would show the personal seal or coat of arms of the bearer. Since the High Middle Ages, the medallion has been worn by such officials as the chancellors of England, mayors of cities, and rectors of universities, and came to signify the high personal position such figures occupied in their respective governments. During the Renaissance, medallion design reached unique artistic heights, and in certain portraits the medallion was given particular prominence. The medallion is worn by the President. The Quinnipiac medal showcases the university seal, sculpted in relief and cast in bronze.
